I have master and slave where I have a table ordered so that on master every row has its own record. Now, the problem is that now I need to keep the data and update it, but since I am not deleting a single record, all of the records in the table appear in replication as if I had deleted them. I am using master-master with replication type row-based. Why is this happening? A: I am not deleting a single record In row-based replication, all you do is "replicate all rows". Since you haven't actually deleted anything, each row is replicated as if you did. What you want instead is "replicate x rows", where x is the number of records that need to be retained. Low serum adiponectin levels in lung cancer patients. Adiponectin is an abundant adipocyte-derived serum protein that is associated with insulin resistance and atherosclerosis, which are important factors in lung cancer. This study was conducted to determine whether serum adiponectin levels in lung cancer patients were altered. Serum adiponectin levels were measured in 164 lung cancer patients (85 females, 79 males) and 163 healthy control subjects (85 females, 78 males) using an enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay. Adiponectin levels were significantly lower in patients with lung cancer compared with the healthy control subjects (5.3+/-1.8 vs. 8.5+/-2.8 microg/mL, p 3e33713323
