1-abc.net Personal Addresses Crack + With Product Key [Win/Mac]

1-abc.net Personal Addresses Crack For Windows is a compact but strong address manager that can help you organize contact data of friends, relatives, companies or customers. Nowadays, addresses or telephone numbers can be saved to data bases, to word processing files, to text files or can even be organized on your mobile phone or online. While the main focus of address data bases should still be the data itself, that it can be accessed very fast and that the way to it should not be overloaded with features that you never need, most possibilities to save your personal contact data unfortunately fail when you really check out these main questions. Isn't it annoying that most data base programs show you a splash screen for a few seconds before you can start to search just for a simple address? Doesn't it bore you to be asked after each single change if you want to save the data or not? And don't you get angry when you think about the high price you have to pay for a big office suite when you just want to find out the telephone number of a friend? We understand you, because we think the same way. So we decided to develop and release 1-abc.net Personal Addresses Download With Full Crack. Based on the famous SQLite structure this program organizes all your contact data. The program starts directly after you clicked the icon and anything you enter is saved automatically. Of course, even if we managed to develop a very easy to use program, it would be no 1-abc.net product, if it would not have some fantastic features too. You can search for single entries using wild cards in each part of it. You get a result table with all entries matching your search. You can sort the whole list or the filtered data after each column. You can protect the access to the program with a personal password. And you can decide by your own where the data base file is located and even network drives are possible so that 1-abc.net Personal Addresses For Windows 10 Crack can be installed on another computer than the data is saved. 1-abc.net Personal Addresses is a compact but strong address manager that can help you organize contact data of friends, relatives, companies or customers. What's New In?

===== 1-abc.net Personal Addresses (PAD) is a free software that allows you to create and manage your own personal address data base. PAD makes your contact data easily accessible and immediately usable at any time. Key features ===== - Just click to open the data base - Save all or selected contacts immediately - Search and sort easily - Filter the search - Access the data base on any computer - Keep your private data secure PAD is designed as a multi-user software. It allows you to create a complete data base for your contacts and to keep them organized. Just make any or all of the features visible and click to get to the data base. Technical features ===== You can store single entries or multiple entries per contact person. Each entry is indicated by a unique entry number. A free entry number will be offered to you automatically. You can save your entries using a text file as address book or as a contact list. As your contact data base grows you can easily increase the amount of data in the program. You can protect your data base using a password and decide how you want to protect it. You can also choose whether to use a personal password or a new password for every user or a different password for each entry. When you run PAD you don't need to register any personal data. You don't need to create your own user name and you don't have to give any personal information. PAD is a multi-user software. That means you can share your data with other users. All users can choose what parts of the data base to share and with which users. You can choose whether you want to store your data in a network drive. Just choose a shared location and save the data there. Your data can be used at any time and on any computer. Your data can be kept safe. Your database can be encrypted or password protected. You can organize your contacts in the way you want. You can sort the contacts after each contact column or you can sort all contacts by one or several selection criteria. The program works on any computer and uses no installation. PAD works in a drag and drop way. Just click and enter or select any information you want to save and the program will store the data for you. You can change the settings of the program at any time. You can also define your own additional settings. What's new in version 5.0? ===== 1-abc.net Personal Addresses (PAD) is a powerful data base program for your contact data.
