A San Bernardino man pretending to be a cop captured on video was in court Thursday, where he was ordered to stay away from police cars and the Canyon Country subdivision where he was spotted. "If you show up at the Canyon Country subdivision saying you're a police officer, you will be arrested and charged with criminal impersonation. Thank you very much," said San Bernardino County Superior Court Judge M. Rick Crawford. Officers were called to the Cache Creek Mobile Home Park and witnessed 22-year-old Devin Eastwell on Jan. 2, standing in front of a house wearing reflective vest and had police lights on the top of his car. Crawford re-read Eastwell's rights to him, looked up the law and asked Eastwell if he needed an attorney. "No," Eastwell said as his defense attorney, John Stenton, stood by. Crawford said the law can be a little tricky and asked for advice from a bailiff. Eastwell conceded to him that he was lying about being a cop. "So you were a con artist, too?" the judge asked. "No, I'm not a con artist," Eastwell said. Crawford ruled to appoint a public defender from San Bernardino County and set bail at $40,000. A felony warrant is outstanding for Eastwell for violating the terms of his probation, which was violated when he violated various laws when deputies were investigating him for impersonating a police officer, the newspaper reported. Process - An Excel God's Way All's well that ends well. As we proved earlier this week, there's no silver bullet to make a selection and process it quickly in to the media. There's an art to it that requires skill. Isle of Wight Deal deadline already passed As the deadline loomed last week, the selection of just 41 players took as long as a fortnight. Each round of interviews with the selected players was done with time to spare before the day's games. Could we have done it any faster? The short answer is "no". To get an answer that didn't immediately throw up red flags. Apparently a good time to negotiate or change the terms of a contract All things considered, it was one of the most organized press conferences we've ever seen and despite none of the members of the panel being efficient, there were standard and emailed questions answered. Interestingly, none of the press presenters wanted to go with the favourite format, which felt like something of a passive choice. The results of the tournament are already known but it's how the press handled the news that makes it such an interesting edition. The deadline for contract agreement was 2pm and only one player was to be handed to the FA that day as it was too late to change the process. A pretty pragmatic choice. The only problem? It didn't seem to work that well. Why? Let's imagine we're the independent fans who have no connection to The FA or the FA commission. We fill your inbox every morning with news and results and you know it's a good day when the winners are either talking of leaving the league or the most glorious stories are in the middle of the EPL. We know the deadline was on the 2nd of January and the FA had an announcement that they've selected your favourites on the 1st. We're just getting the press conferences to happen. We have no idea of how it's going to play out just yet. But we know there's a deadline, we expect it to happen. Now, just imagine the FA behind the scenes. They don't want a certain player and require a certain amount of hard bargaining and time to give them what they need. Even if they know it won't play out in the media. Because they can't. We can and we're having just as much fun as the FA's not paying any attention. We've maybe even got less money on the days they make promises

--> The singer put it bluntly on her blog : "I love Kanye West." That statement was cool, and I think we all know that a couple of white girls like Ms. Taylor don't really have much to fear, if even a little bit, from a dude like Kanye. And in that case, we should feel safe at BET Awards 2017 that Kanye won't be opening any bars of thunder. Because Kanye WEST is i-tayal. Anyway, when it comes to this year's show, I'd like to see a number of Black artists get standing ovations. Chaka Khan is one of those artists, and she will be performing, along with Trey Songz, Kelly Rowland, Timbaland and more. You can catch the 2013 BET Awards, live from Los Angeles on Sunday, April 29, at 8PM on BET. But be warned. IT'S MUCH MUCH LOUDER than last night. I don't care who your favorites are at this year's show. I will give you side-by-side storylines about how I would prefer MJG or Vieira or J.lo to win over any of the guys. For example, ME! ME! ME! I want Kulture's gift card to return. I want Peedi Peedi and all of his fans to say, "I Want-A-Chi" or "I Want-A-Peedi" or "I Want-A-" will let you finish their sentence. It's multi-awards season, and I'm bringing back the "Best Male Musician" award every year. So who gets this year's nomination? Nah. My favorite talk show shows are In the Dark With Black Girls and Single Ladies. Kanye West is on BET quite often. I'm a ton of fun when I am being myself. Charlie Murphy looks more than handsome in person. The Whoopids are the biggest band of their generation. Drake- that guy goes from bachelorhood to marriage in one hot summer. Nicki Minaj- she went from single to not having time to mee mee her baby making skills. And seriously
