Questionnaire-based investigation of depression among patients with liver disease: current status of self-reporting as evidence for a problem. Currently, only few studies with liver disease patients exist. Nevertheless, if depression is a common problem in these patients, it may have an important influence on the outcome of liver disease. A questionnaire-based investigation about current and past symptomatology of depression was performed in 81 patients with liver disease (60% HBV, 35% HCV, 6% other). Patients were investigated for their mental state by the AMDP-brief questionnaire, the number of symptoms were evaluated by the self-rating depression scale, 46 patients did a telephone interview and 16 patients were investigated with a structured clinical interview for DSM-IV. Sixty patients (74.1%) were classified as depressive by the AMDP-brief questionnaire. The number of self-reported symptoms was 7.9+/-5.0, the mean SDS score was 38.3+/-10.4. A hierarchical cluster analysis revealed two groups of patients with markedly different scores: patients with positive depression symptoms, and patients without depression symptoms. Those with depression symptoms were more frequently male (P=0.013), had a higher score for abdominal symptoms (P=0.007), a higher score for anxiety and for somatic symptoms (P=0.029 and P=0.041 respectively) and higher mean scores for the number of depression symptoms

(P=0.013). Differences between patients with positive depression symptoms and patients without depression symptoms, were not significant in terms of age, duration of illness and serum test results. The sensitivity of the questionnaire was 100% (95% CI: 79.2-100.0%), the specificity 95.2% (95% CI: 87.0-

Senior debuts at AMA East Deerfield Beach, Fla. - The University of Miami women's volleyball team got a big performance from its senior outside hitters at the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women East volleyball tournament in which it claimed a share of the team title. A crowd of more than 2,000 people saw coach Bob Williams' team take the title with a 3-1 (25-22, 25-23, 21-25, 25-22, 15-11) victory over Connecticut in the title match. The Hurricanes had a combined 11 points from their top four hitters. Freshman outside hitter LaToya Wilson had her best match of her career with 11 kills, four blocks and two aces. Senior outside hitter Simone Eliza added six kills and four blocks, while senior middle hitter Lyndsay Howell added three kills and three blocks. The Canes will play the No. 9-ranked LSU Tigers in a first round match on Thursday at 12:30 p.m. (ET) in College Station, Texas. The match will be followed live on Internet through www.Canesport.com/watch.

This invention relates to a method and apparatus for determining the flow of a liquid via a gas. More particularly, this invention is directed to a method and apparatus for determining the flow of a liquid which overcomes the problems inherent in the gas-liquid pipe. The prior art has recognized that when a gas, such as air, is discharged from a pipe to a liquid, the gas expands as it comes into contact with the liquid. Hence, the volume of gas available to drive the liquid may be reduced, and the liquid may actually be gasified. A detailed discussion of this phenomenon is set forth in the Application of
