That is why in the middle no. 15, there is "arotsu" (2) in the name and "arochatsuri" (3) with the word "Piston" in the name. There is no mistaking they are piston pumps not jet pumps as shown on this page. Hence, idamotor is piston pump, but not so sure why Duro sets them apart from Arotssu and Arochatsuri. The best guess is idamotor was created first in the late 1950's and Arotssu and Arochatsuri

had to follow. Piston pumps from Duro. Idamotor piston pumps, Arotssu piston pumps, and Arochatsuri piston pumps. You might want to post the idamotor. In addition to details of the pump itself, information would be useful such as year made, year first sold, year shipped, and whether or not it is new or used, if you have one. We have a Duro piston pump that I would like to post information on.

We also have an Arotssu and an Arochatsuri pistons pump, which I would also like to post information on.

Reproduced with permission from the Flite Rite Factory Store and Service Manual. Allows the pump to operate with low water supply pressure, such as sea water. * A ring is used for the water pump to prevent the piston from dropping when the water supply pressure is low.
