"We are currently developing an epic fantasy RPG action game for PS4. The game is the brand new fantasy action RPG developed by Square Enix and it will release next year. The main storyline of the game will focus on developing a character in a quest to find a way to resurrect Princess Olivia, a princess who was put to sleep by her family, in order to protect the people from the attacks of the Lucid demon. An adventure story full of magic unfolds. As a new character, you will face various trials and adventures in this new fantasy world." (From Square Enix) ■ Action Design of an RPG is an Art How do you design an RPG for action? To create the foundation of the action, we focus on the three aspects of excitement, freedom, and freedom of action. These things come up naturally to players. Toward "Freedom" In Action RPGs, players are expected to go on a quest that involves going through various kinds of dungeons. What aspect of freedom would enhance the enjoyment of a dungeon? The freedom to freely set our pace and to freely decide what to do can surely be expressed. It should also be noted that the more freedom players have, the more important it is to provide them with clear instructions for how to freely enjoy the world of the game. What aspect of freedom would enhance the excitement of battle? The freedom to freely attack the enemy, and the freedom to freely attack the enemy at the best timing can surely be expressed. There should be various enemies, and it should be possible to freely decide where to attack. If players have freedom to freely decide what to do, they can freely utilize the feeling that comes with moving themselves. Even if you are a veteran of the genre, no matter what kind of action you can engage in, the freedom to enjoy the feeling of action will always be an art. Toward “Excitement” In Action RPGs, we need to express the sensation that comes from participating in a battle in a fun way. Toward this, it is an important aspect that players are able to express their skills in the game freely. Since not everyone can be a great wizard and a great swordman simultaneously, in order to express the player’s own play style and personality, the freedom of character development was granted in the adventure stage.
