As highly anticipated as it was to the point of being almost unfair, the Elden Ring has finally made it's way to the West in this 2017 release. The story here is of course nothing new and has been a topic of discussion on many a forum since the announcement. The question here is of course "What makes it so different from all other SRPG's?" Well, first and foremost, the unique online aspect of the game. And in that sense the developers have really gone all out. With a name like "Asynchronous Online" the game really should be full of people all around the world playing together, right? Well, not so much. Because the system is asynchronous, meaning that you don't have to connect to someone in real time to perform the ability. You simply click "A" and it's done. As far as a search party is concerned, it will allow you to see who else is on and who else is away to you. This means that your party only knows that you've gone on and is unaware of who else is with you, as well as the other party. As far as any of the other parties know, you're just now starting, which is an intentional way of not spoiling the game. Now while this could mean that some may feel this is a waste of time, it does not. It creates a sense of urgency and excitement to find out who you're actually playing with, which really adds tension to the game. The feel of the game is quite much different too. It's a fantasy game like none other. The visuals are done using the Unreal Engine 4 with a nice clean 2.5D art style. This is done to give it a more "realistic" feel, though I'll say that it's a little too realistic. I find myself able to notice the details more than I should, such as the way the wind hits the hair and the small pieces of wood the characters are sitting on. This is all well and good but with all of this realism they have created, it becomes hard to tell between the foreground and background. This means that you can't really tell where you are unless you know where you're looking. One thing I did notice was that at times the UI would be very distracting, and for some people it may be just too much. For those that bff6bb2d33

Rise, Tarnished, and be guided by grace to brandish the power of the Elden Ring and become an Elden Lord in the Lands Between. The game's battle system is designed in a manner to allow you to attack your opponents while conversing with them to create a world similar to RPGs, but within a world of fantasy.

Gameplay system: Combat You can attack enemies with either weapons you are holding or from your inventory. Combo Specials In your combo attacks, you can execute multiple kinds of special moves with the same input. You can damage enemies with attacks that are even more powerful than regular attacks. Frequently used Combo Specials: You can also use the same special move multiple times before you are required to execute a "gauge-down" during a special move. After you execute a Combo Special, you can use different combo attacks.

Equipment You can equip a variety of equipment, and can freely select the equipment that you want to equip. Every item can be equipped as a weapon or armor. You can equip a shield and a helmet which is your active defense. You can switch it by pressing a button. You can equip various magic. You can switch the equipped spells freely. You can also equip skills which increases your attack power. You can equip an item which provides character growth. You can also equip a weapon which forces you to fight with that weapon alone until the battle ends.

Weapon Skill and Magic Skill can be equipped as a skill which increases the damage. Character Attributes You can increase or decrease your weapons skill and magic skill to easily become one of the best fighters or magicians in the Lands

Between. You can increase characters attributes in various ways: Equip a weapon with a higher attribute than the normal attribute of your weapon. Equip a weapon with a lower attribute than the normal attribute of your weapon. Increase your normal attribute to 10 or more. Increase your skill attribute to 10 or more. Raise your normal attribute by 10 or more. Raise your skill attribute by 10 or more. Equipment and Magic is not limited. Different equipment types exist such as Melee weapons, Short-range weapons, and Heavy weapons. You can also equip weapons with a special effect. You can use the different equipment that you have equipped in the Lands Between.
