Karen E. Phelps, November 30, 2017 9.1 Summary: I love it! I have not felt this much joy for an RPG since Morrowind! Karen E. Phelps, November 30, 2017 9.1 Summary: I love it! I have not felt this much joy for an RPG since Morrowind! Armored Warrior26, November 30, 2017 8.0 Summary: I love the overall feeling I get when playing this game. From jumping over trees or shrinking through them, the combat is smooth and seamless. Although the world is still very much a work in progress, and a few things like the LARP/ Storyboard/ Voice Acting need to be done, I feel like I've found my home in a new universe. I've been playing this game for several months now, and I've found that there is something there to explore for those that are patient enough. I've also felt that some elements of the story can drag here and there, and are a bit hard to parse. Despite that, I've been thrilled with the amount of material I've been able to get into the game for free. If you're looking for a "Differentiated" Fantasy that has that same feeling as Skyrim (or SotN), I recommend you to check this game out. Numerous regimens have been used to accelerate the passage of the upper gastrointestinal (GI) endoscope. This systematic review and meta-analysis attempts to make recommendations for the optimal regimens after assessing the available data. We searched PubMed, Web of Science, Scopus, Google Scholar, Cinahl Plus, EMBASE, Cochrane Library, China Knowledge Resource Integrated Database and Chinese BioMedical Literature Database from January 2010 to December 2014. Studies having compared the passage of the endoscope using different regimens were identified. The data on the GI passage time was extracted directly or calculated from published data. A random-effect model was used to pool all data, RevMan 5.0 was applied to present data. Seven randomized clinical trials and 26 nonrandomized clinical studies that enrolled 1484 patients met the inclusion criteria. In two fixed-effect models comparing the regimens, oral sucrose (251.5 mL) significantly reduced the OR to expect GI passage compared with placebo (476.8 mL) [OR 0.42, 95% confidence interval (CI) 0.32-0.55] or bisacodyl (111.9 mL) [OR 0.50, 95% CI 0.38-0.69] on the day of the procedure.
