The present invention relates to a projector. 2. Description of the Related Art In recent years, in a projector, a compact and lightweight liquid crystal projector which includes a light source having a smaller size and consumes less electric power has been developed, compared with the conventional type. However, in the conventional liquid crystal projector, in a case where a light source unit (an LSI or the like) for lighting a lamp is arranged inside a housing of the liquid crystal projector, a light source unit, a heat releasing plate, and a housing are assembled using a number of screws. Therefore, in a case of assembling components having a heat generating property, there is a problem in that heat from the light source unit is not sufficiently released from the light source unit to a housing. Further, in the conventional liquid crystal projector, when the components are assembled, a number of steps are required, which is not efficient. The present invention has been achieved in view of the above problems. An object of the present invention is to provide a projector in which a light source unit having a heat generating property can be efficiently assembled with a housing.
