This includes the brand new “reactive ball system,” which enables players to more effectively and realistically create attacking chances. The new Control Style System allows players to pull off a multitude of realistic tactics. It has a level-based structure and adjusts the difficulty level dynamically depending on how the player plays. Players can use a variety of attacking tactics or try to beat a defender head-to-head. Also, FIFA 20 introduces a tighter, more intelligent AI and more realistic off-ball movement in a feature called “zonal movement.” Players will now be more aware of their surroundings and tend to change their direction of movement in a precise fashion to reach their preferred area. Here are some of the highlights of FIFA 20 that we’d like to share with you: General Changes Eligibility conditions for the World Cup. Updated pitch space. Updated gameplay models. Updated camera, replays, and animations. Replay camera has been improved. Gameplay style has been adjusted to better reflect the current day. Increased number of ball movements in the final third. Changes made to the Reactive Ball System. New Control Style System. New, sophisticated AI. New Main Menu. New FIFA MyClub and Ultimate Team setup options. Updated Team Editor. Videos

Let’s check out some gameplay and features in the FIFA 20 game. Reactive Ball System FIFA 20 introduces a more realistic pattern of the ball using a single player acting as a “carrier” to simulate the ball’s movement. Following this pattern, the ball can be moved more quickly from one player to another, and the ball’s movement characteristics have been improved as a result. As in real life, the player with the ball will try to get to his preferred area, and most of the ball’s movement toward the goal will be made by the player using the ball. This creates more realistic patterns of play and will increase the number of attacking chances for a team. Also, when a player finds himself in a shooting position at close range, the ball has a tendency to rush toward the player and then come back into a position closer to the goal to create more opportunities to score. The new system is very effective in terms of attacking. The ability to get the ball into open space by
