The spectral properties of the black body radiation of spherical nanoparticles under the irradiation with an optical field are analyzed. The model is based on a recently suggested phenomenological theory of the interaction of the plasmonic nanostructures with the thermal radiation. Thus, the influence of the size and shape of the irradiated nanoparticles is investigated. The most important parameter of this theory is the interaction constant and the results of this study are compared to the results of the Monte Carlo simulations.A Russian luxury brokerage firm has added Zirconium to its product line.
