Divisadero is a crime adventure featuring investigation and choice. A game that will force you to use your own investigative methods and decisions. Use of the case file creates a cohesive story. The Workflow: Divisadero uses multiple search windows and browser tabs to ensure the player always has the most up to date information. To find information in the case file you click on buttons and find the location on the map. To find data on the places you're visiting you simply explore them.

WARNING This game is not for children. It contains content not suitable for those under 18 years old. This is a game in which you can investigate real life areas and places in a simulated environment.

Some areas are open to the public and many are no longer accessible. Some places contain elements that may be disturbing. Play at your own risk. In the brutal, corrupt city of San Francisco, murder is a way of life, and the only crime you can't solve is the one that isn't committed. Cities of Fall is a murder mystery narrative game that will force you to use your own investigative skills and make choices to crack a case. Explore locations both familiar and totally novel, and interact with the environment to find clues and solve the mystery. There are several key statistics about the locations in the city and all are preserved in the case file, so if you think there's a glitch or something is missing or goes unmentioned, you know to look there first. The city has this way of teaching you to read the surrounding environment without quite knowing how. And the street names look like they belong in an old black-and-white noir film. Most of the storylines in Cities of Fall are coming from the real locations in San Francisco. Mystery-Type Gameplay The game has no combat. The motives are internal, so there's no definite wrong way to solve a case. But murder is real and there are people murdered. Cities of Fall is a narrative adventure game where the player is a detective solving a case, with choice and consequences. And it's a murder mystery game with locations and motive-type story elements where the player must apply their intuition and narrow down the list of suspects. You can play Cities of Fall as a first-person detective, a faux-noir story or as a third-person detective where the objectives are solely to solve a case. Cities of Fall is a narrative game driven by choice. Set in through the Music of the Black Forest When it comes to the annual midwinter Bach Festival in Bacharach, the German city near the French border where Bach died in 1750, music can seem to get all fairy-tale: there, 12 strings of fairy-tale ornaments in the famous Bacharach church choir sing every day not only for one another but also for their community. The organ underneath them, played by acolyte Andreas Ottenweyer, is built on an elaborate basis of chanticleer (a rooster), black cat and white horse. In the summer a harmonium lets the cows also sing. The concerts in the Bach-Chor are followed by a drollerschüss, a candlelit supper club featuring Bavarian cooking. Bach-Chor-aufnahme The 22nd Bach Festival on January 22, 2013, is the biggest of the year. The music - almost 650 works for orchestra and voice from Bach's chorale cycles - takes up four different institutions: the St. Konrad Cathedral parish church, the Stadtmusikschule and the Wohltätigkeit beider deutscher Nationen Kindertherapeuten e.V. choir school, and the Manderzieherhaus singing school.
