KaKeeware ToolTip Thief Incl Product Key Free [Win/Mac] (Latest)

----- The program was designed to work on all versions of Windows OS starting with Windows 95 and up to Windows 7 (even Windows NT 4.0 & XP)! All tooltips are supported, but some types are not accessible, for example, Form, Treeview and Treeview Node are not supported. "Hey! we have a patch for you" - Sorry, I don't accept/provide patched versions of my own programs. What it does: ----- Detection (emulated back to 95) The program can be used in different ways: (1) When you double-click on an item in Explorer, it will be opened in a new window. (2) Press CTRL+F11, and it will be opened in a new window. (3) You can set it to be launched by an arbitrary shortcut (or even just by writing a text): "C:\Program Files\KaKeeware ToolTip Thief Cracked Accounts.exe" If you run the program as a process in the System Tray, a window will open when a tooltip is dismissed (the tooltip is displayed on screen for one second after it's removed from the screen). The program automatically saves the files it opens when you set the shortcuts to "open documents". If you don't, you will get warning that the shortcut can't be saved (saved automatically, of course, the program will do it for you). Note that the shortcut that will be created does not contain any arguments (for that I use "... just to prevent arguments from being automatically generated), this means that you will be able to open document using the following: "C:\Program Files\KaKeeware ToolTip Thief.exe" KaKeeware ToolTip Thief Installation:

1 - If I can't find the Tooltip text, I try to get it by pure luck! 2 - If it works, you will see a window with the copied text, and the last one works best! #### What's New in the KaKeeware ToolTip Thief?

KaKeeware ToolTip Thief is an easy-to-use and highly customizable tool that intercepts all standard tooltips in all windows. It is a lightweight, free and, most importantly, fully automatic tool that allows you to capture tooltips with absolutely no user intervention. Up to now, there is no such tool to my knowledge. The main goal of this tool was to provide a clean and simple interface to intercept tooltips. Simple is not a "negative" word, it is a "positive" word! Besides, the application asks you only the tooltip text and the size of the text, and this can be done with no problem. The ToolTip Thief application is designed to handle almost all Windows tooltips, including those that appear on Windows OS itself (when Internet Explorer shows a static text description of a page or window). Two configurations for Tooltip Thief are available: - Serial - Per Application The Serial configuration intercepts all tooltips from all windows at once. It allows you to capture nearly all tooltips in a single command (it doesn't need to be a serial process). The Per Application configuration intercepts only one application at a time (so you can run the application and then continue your work with no interruption. This is useful, for instance, when you want to use the captured tooltip text as a password). The ToolTip Thief documentation is available in PDF format. How to use the tool: Open the TOOLTIPS CONTROL in the specified window. Hold the CTRL key and move the pointer inside the tooltips area until the tool tip entry is highlighted. Then release the CTRL key (it will be frozen). Release the mouse. KaKeeware ToolTip Thief, a command-line tool, is now shown. Enter the list of all tooltips you want to intercept (separated by commas). KaKeeware ToolTip Thief will process those tooltips with no problem. Now you can check the progress of the process by either killing the process with CTRL-C or monitor the process with the task manager. The original ToolTip Thief app might not provide you with the exact tooltip text you got in the window. However, it will provide you with a list of all the tooltips that will appear in the window. You can review this list to get the result you need. The tools to see the progress and get the final result are:

- 1.- Start a command-line interface and run the tool (it will detect
