Example: Make a new control with the name "Circle" and set the radius and the color for this control. I want to make a graphic class for Circle with 4 arguments. (rad, color, opacity and a progress property). But i need to make the circle class with Set Property, or i need to give the specific Graphic class the parameters. What i want to do is making the Graphic class independent of the property that are inside. class GraphicClass { public Circle MyCircle; } class Circle { public GraphicClass MyGraphics = new GraphicClass(); } Thanks. A: While it sounds like you want to create a graphic class for a specific type of graphic, it sounds like you want to create a Graphic class that supports any type of graphic? If that's the case, then you may want to consider creating a Graphic class that can be subclassed. That way, you can add 595f342e71
