A: Ok, i think the best way to do this was to convert the list to an array. Then iterate through the array and create a custom product badge for each product. The code used was: `$filtered_result = array(); foreach($items as $item){ $filtered_result[] = array('id' => $item['id'], 'name' => $item['name'], 'link' => $item['link'], 'archived' => $item['archived']); }` Then at a later date i put together the CSS and copied/pasted the code in a stylesheet. Hope this is of use to someone else as i am not very smart. Thanks for the help, R :-moz-submit-invalid { display: none; } Submit e79caf774b

Customization is also the theme of the annual Star Wars Celebration in Florida, which is coming to a close on Friday, April 6th (it was yesterday, but didn't take place yesterday.) This is a one day celebration of all things Star Wars, including Star Wars - The Official Stars Wars Fan Club (yep, get a membership if you just want to party!)... One of the biggest events is Disney's huge and amazing-looking Star Wars: Galaxy's Edge and the new Star Wars Land opening the week after. All the information has been leaked out online, as has a ton of concept art, via a: I'll be there! ? Just a heads up so you know what you're not seeing if you go. The new Line has an awesome new Darth Maul lightsaber coming! Plus a few other goodies. Plus, you can get the new Darth Vader lightsaber ($149.99) while supplies last. Plenty of Space Battle Droids and a BB-8 replica. Some neat props, but the most notable for me is a new T-16 interstellar interceptor, a couple new X-Wings, and a new imperial shuttle. Oh, and there's also an Advent Calendar in the store... What else is cool? Now comes the fun part, time to shop! Lots of options on the web, and I hope this helps you make the right choices for your wallet and your playtime! Let me know in the comments below what you're getting!
