Windows 10 is due out sometime next year, and it will be the most important product release Microsoft has ever made. We'll go over what Microsoft has announced, and what it has not. Microsoft has announced six new SKUs for Windows 8 and Windows 8.1. The new SKUs are Win 8.1/64, Win 8.1/32, Win 8.1/64 DVD, Win 8.1/32 DVD, Win 8.1/64 ISO, and Win 8.1/32 ISO. Only the 64-bit versions are available via download, and only the 32-bit versions are available on DVD. The Windows 10 End User License Agreement is built on top of the agreement for Windows 8 and Windows 8.1, and I recommend that you take a look at that for a flavor of what it entails. There are four new Win10 features that we will go over: Microsoft Edge: Microsoft has completely redesigned its web browser. It is still being built, but it is expected that most features will be available. What's new in the (almost) final build of Windows 10 Because a new build of Windows will be released every month, we think it would be useful to show you what is new in the (almost) final build. Read on to discover what is new in the upcoming Windows 10 update. The YouTube video above shows you what's new in the latest build of Windows 10, and what has been newly updated. Shortcuts Windows knows your intentions and it is helping you more than ever. I won't go into full detail about the shortcuts, but here are some of the highlights: -The keyboard shortcuts for selecting the day and the month of the date picker are now on the right side. -You can now drag the scroll bar and flip it so that it occupies the left or right side. -You can now uncheck the first program in the list of Windows Store apps. It is still an open question whether you can uncheck additional programs. -The familiar search bar has been located on the right side. And you can now access the source and settings without leaving the search bar. -You can now begin typing with the mouse pointer in the apps screen and the list of apps comes up. -You can now also start typing in the start screen and type and search or launch apps. -Suspend keyboard b7e8fdf5c8

Convert Doc is a simple, yet powerful program that is intended for users who want to help them convert documents to various file formats. The tool can be used for processing any type of files, including DOCX, DOC, PPT, RTF, and TXT. Moreover, Convert Doc allows you to store the output file under different locations or to upload them directly into the working area. For example, you can specify the destination folder for the created files and set them as favorites. The program is well-designed for beginners: all operations are clearly explained, and it offers an array of useful options that can be adjusted quickly. Convert Doc possesses a well-thought-out interface, and it gives you the possibility to control the process via configuration files. You can run the utility directly, create a batch job, or view detailed information for the input files. Convert Doc provides options that will allow you to easily perform conversion operations. Apart from the above, Convert Doc also gives you the opportunity to launch various external programs. You can choose which one to use, or select the built-in "Special Processing" mode that provides three options: "Set Options", "Remove White Text", and "Go to Contents". The latter lets you specify the content and format of the pages that you want to remove, launch the programs required for batch processing, and search and replace some text or symbols. Besides that, Convert Doc is extremely easy to use. You can specify the program settings by dragging the necessary parameters into the window (there is no need to drag and drop files into the interface). You can add multiple files to convert, as well as specify the working environment's local path (if you do not want to connect to the network), or the destination folder (for instance, in case you want to place the output file in the same folder). At the same time, Convert Doc supports the "Batch Processing" mode. You can perform multiple conversion operations at the same time. For example, you can easily load multiple DOC files, drag them into the interface, and set all of them to perform the conversion process. You can pause the conversion task if you need to do something else, and resume it when you are ready to process more files. Furthermore, Convert Doc presents the option to remove white text from the processed files. If you want to get rid of extra line, you can enable the features, so you will be able to remove them
