I'm creating an app that will process images and convert to JPG. To finish as soon as possible, I need to process the images in batch because I have a 50,000 image database I need to convert. The only way I think of doing it is by using a new thread. I tried to do it like this: private void runConvert() { for(int i = 0; i { @Override protected String doInBackground(String... params) { /* . . . */ return null; } @Override protected void onPostExecute(String result) {
