Q: Parsing JSON in Python: Choosing the right JSON Parser I'm writing a Python script to extract some data from a JSON feed. I've gotten to the point where I parse through the feed to find what I'm looking for, but I'm not sure how to proceed. The feed contains an array of objects, and each object has a name and a "validity period". I'd like to sort the objects by validity period and then "keep" the first one and ignore the rest. This is the sample of the JSON feed (minus fields I don't need):

{ "feed": [ { "id": "123", "name": "Some Name", "validityPeriod": [ "February", "March", "April" ] }, { "id": "456", "name": "Some Other Name", "validityPeriod": [ "April", "June", "July" ] }, { "id": "789",
