Once you have internet access, download the latest version of the Torch Password Recovery software from the link below. Apex TSR does not support the recovery of passwords stored in the format sdfasdfsad. However, this format is supported by Apex Sql, so if a connection between the two components is in place, you may be able to recover a password with this format. The only catch is that you must have internet access in order to download the software for you to use in the first place. Feel free to ask for help at the support forums for Apex TSR if you are stuck and need to know what you are supposed to be doing. Resetting the default password is not supported by Apex TSR. Apex does not support the conversion of a password into a hash. Hashes can be useful when attempting to recover a password. However, TSR does not support the recovery of hashes directly (as far as I can tell).
