RetroArch is a multi-system emulator that loads multiple "cores" (multiple emulators) for arcade games. At the time I'm writing this, it includes the following: FB Alpha, FinalBurn Neo, MAME (classic), MAME 2000, MAME 2001, and MAME 2010. This selection of cores is valuable when it comes to getting old arcade ROMs to work. The GBA emulator loads most of the game, in most of the game (including Sonic's "Shooting..."). The GBA emulator only loads the game about 1 or 2 cores in game for like... To play full game with a single emulator is impossible (you must have 2 or 3 or more emulators). For playing full game not working, we must use two emulator or more emulator to load a game. This is the extending problem. It's like a game is only run once in game. For playing full game, it is impossible. It's a problem. Another option: A rising star in the emulator scene is RetroArch, a multi-system emulator. It includes multiple "cores" (multiple emulators) for arcade games. At the time I'm writing this, it includes the following: FB Alpha, FinalBurn Neo, MAME (classic), MAME 2000, MAME 2001, and MAME 2010. There is a list of cores to get arcade games to work. MAME 2001 is a particular deal for getting old arcade ROMs to work. Kawaks Emulator is available to download for Windows PCs. This emulator works in maximum quality on the Windows platform and is developed by Kamek Team. Download Kawaks to play Neo-Geo ROMs on your device. Cross-platform Neo-Geo Emulators are available only at EmulationGates.net for multiple platforms to run your games.
