With 9,000 private airlines that you can create, fly, and even buy using points, Micro is using its partnership with United Airlines to bring the game to smartphones. So, what is Micro? Micro is a blockchain-based travel booking platform that allows individuals to create their very own airlines and travel agencies that follow United's specifications. Both airlines and travel agencies have their own set of rules for tickets, pricing, and customer service. So, there is no central authority in the Micro network. Each airline or travel agency has a private ledger of all transactions that keep track of money used by anyone associated with the airline or travel agency. So, if a micropayment fails, there is no additional use of fix cost. Once you have created your airline or travel agency, you must try to sell it or promote it to your friends. Each time you sell your airline or travel agency, you get a payment in micropayments. Each point is equal to one dollar. It's simple as that.
