Volunteers are essential to chamber committees and special projects and as organizations increase in size, volunteers are always needed to help manage the day to day operations of such an enormous corporation. We are always looking for volunteers to serve on Board Committees, Committees, Project Councils and special projects. Volunteers are equally important to the venue as they help us manage guest service, clean and help prepare for the event and generally assist with everything from event management, to event marshalling, reservations and setting up the venue and food service. Please email info@morden-chamber.com.au if you would like to volunteer.

Q: How can i convert a double to a int? Im trying to convert a double value to a int. In a previous question i was advised to use: `int i = double.value.toInt();` But it throws an `java.lang.NumberFormatException: null`

A: There is no standard conversion between floating-point numbers and integer. The closest thing Java has to a standard solution is `Double.toString()` where the value is passed to the `NumberFormat`. A: It seems like you want `double d = ...; int i = d.intValue();` There are ways to convert to `int` by using a `Formatter`. However, the conversion may not be reliable because of the floating point issues. The influence of counselling methods on family life of patients with epilepsy. Two groups of patients who had epilepsy were studied at the outpatient clinic of a neurology department. The method of counselling was analyzed in order
